Liberty Seeks Participation in Planning Project

The town and the village of Liberty have joined to undertake a new comprehensive plan. A comprehensive plan is a non-regulatory document that describes the town's history and its current conditions, and it sets a framework to help guide the future of the community.

"We're off to a great start," remarked Frank DeMayo, town supervisor. "This is an excellent opportunity for people in the community to help guide this important process," said the supervisor. Peter Manning, the project's planning consultant, added that, "broad citizen involvement will generate the optimal expression of the community and help chart the best course going forward."

The existing town-village comprehensive plan was completed in 2008. The current project is being supported by New York State's Local Government Efficiency Program. The town and village encourage residents to assist in the development of one or more of the plan's many topics, including Open Space and Agriculture, Business Development, Recreation, Housing, Land Use, and others.

To learn more about the project and the options to participate, please visit the project webpage:

The next project meeting will take place at 6:00pm on Wednesday, March 11 at the Liberty Senior Center, 119 North Main Street.
